FIELD WORK OUTCOME REPORT

As part of the curriculum prescribed by RGUHS, VII SEM B PHARM Syllabus of Practice School comprises of total 12 students who has opted for field work, on various topics mentioned as and completed marketed survey on different active pharmaceutical ingredients of antibiotics. Based on the survey report students were able to differentiate and analyses the different fast-moving brands as well as API's under antibiotic categories.

Outcomes: Students were able to understand

- The distribution and packaging of various antibiotics in accordance with the needs
- The medication's effectiveness for various patient groups.
- Different brands preferred by the consumers were known
- The different categories of the medicated product such as soaps, creams etc., the students were able to differentiate among those and were also able to identify the fast-moving product among the consumers.
- Most acceptable dosage forms.

In an effort to provide students with a field-level exposure, TOCOP launched the notion of field work to assess the legality of various drugs that are sold. As a result, each student was given a different drug, and they were required to submit a report upon completion.

Outcomes: Students could concentrate on the creation of techniques and approaches for disseminating knowledge in various ways. A major focus of the study agenda is teaching students how to make decisions that align with their personal preferences. Additionally, it aids in the students' comprehension of the modifications brought about by the actions conducted during the investigation.
